

The History of the AUSTRALIAN STANDING STONES

“The monument needed to be impressive to have real significance. It was decided that Australia’s National Monument (for the Celts) should be in the form of a solar aligned megalithic stone circle, such circles having played such an important role in the ancient Celtic civilisation of the British Isles and Europe several thousands of years ago”

Ian MacDiarmid D Urr

“This book is a record of the dedication of Glen Innes people and a testament to their preservation of Celtic settlement history and culture, even by those who grew up with an entirely different background.”

Roger Thomas C y C 2012

“...I wonder as I see these New England granite stones whether people visiting the site in two or three thousand years’ time, will understand their origins – or whether the same mystery will surround them as it does with Stonehenge or the Ring of Brodgar. And are these stones likely to outlive all other evidence of our civilisation in the centuries to come, as have the other Standing Stones of previous centuries”

His Excellency Rear Admiral Peter Sinclair AO
